Geological engineer Ivan Sundström observed that the eyes and lungs of miners had to be protected and therefore sought a solution and we have now carried this task with us through and into the 21st century.

Therefore Sundström Safety has invested vast resources into product development. The objective has been to create products that are user-friendly with highest protection level. Traditionally Swedish products are famous for their quality and safety. We can present a complete system with various respiratory protective devices for most applications occurring in the market and we do so stretching globally.

Our imagination has through the years led us to create products with a long lifetime and with the rapid advancement in technological knowledge there is no limits to how far our future system will span, protecting generation after generation from polluted air.

We always endeavor to offer the best possible protection.

So in the future it is our goal not just to provide products that keep you safe but entire systems specifically fitted for your needs, the simple need to keep breathing.
